DETAILED ACTION

1. This action is in response to the communication filed on 03/23/2004.

Claims 1-27 are pending.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claims 1-27 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Kincaid, Pub No. US 2004/0117785 A1, filing on 12/2002.

Given the broadest reasonable interpretation of followed claims in light of the specification.

As per Claim 1: Kincaid discloses,

A method of managing a software configuration update of a vehicle ('cell cites' 121-123: a vehicle),
the method comprising:

identifying a first software module (See 0011: component/newer components/current versions, where these components are stored in a remote server [0050]);

retrieving a vehicle configuration data representative of a first vehicle software configuration (See 0017 and Figure 4: i.e. data received under a trigger event); determining whether the first software module is compatible with the first vehicle software configuration at a call center (See Figure 4: 410/425, the DLM Manager compares received data with current versions); and sending a second vehicle software configuration from the call center (Figure 4: 430: requested components are downloaded) to a telematics unit (FIGURE 2) via a wireless network (See Figure 2, also see 0002-0003, refer to wireless, over-the-air) based on the determination.

As per Claim 2: Kincaid discloses, The method of claim 1, wherein identifying the first software module comprises identifying the first software module responsive to a trigger event (See 0044-0046).

As per Claim 3: Kincaid discloses, The method of claim 2, wherein the trigger event is one of a software request flag generated by the telematics unit or a software install flag generated by the telematics unit (See 0046: e.g., "DONE").

As per Claim 4: Kincaid discloses, The method of claim 1, wherein retrieving the vehicle configuration data comprises one of retrieving the vehicle configuration data from the telematics unit or retrieving the vehicle configuration data from a call center database (e.g. the communication in FIGURE 1 described in FIGURE 2, or 0037).

As per Claim 5: Kincaid discloses, The method of claim 1, wherein determining whether the first software module is compatible with the first vehicle software configuration comprises: identifying a second software module associated with the first vehicle software configuration; and determining whether the first software module is compatible with the second software module (See FIGURE 4: Note The claimed limitation merely recites the definition of versioning).

As per Claim 6: Kincaid discloses, The method of claim 5, wherein sending the second vehicle software configuration comprises sending the first software module from the call center to the telematics unit (refer to software upgrade server sends requested versions of modules to the DLM)

As per Claim 7: Kincaid discloses, The method of claim 5, wherein sending the second vehicle software configuration comprises sending a third software module to the telematics unit wherein the third software module is a different version of the first software module (refer to a DLMs as seen in 0047).

As per Claim 8: The method of claim 5, wherein sending the second vehicle software configuration comprises sending a fourth module to the telematics unit wherein the fourth module is a different version of the second module (refer to a DLMs as seen in 0047).

Art Unit: 2191

As per Claim 9: The method of claim 1, wherein the first software module includes a stub function identifying a software interdependency with a second software module (See FIGURE 4, 420).

As per Claims 10-18, and 19-27: The Claims are readable medium and a system which have the limitations corresponding to the limitations recited in the method of Claims 1-9. See the rationale addressed in the rejection of Claims 1-9.
